

NU, CU Collide; Both In Top 10

When Nebraska and Colorado take the field Saturday afternoon at Memorial Stadium for their 12:30 kickoff before a capacity Memorial Stadium crowd of more than 67,000 and a national television audience (ABC-TV), it may be the first time two members of the nation's top ten have met with the oddsmakers saying there's a three-touchdown difference in their abilities.

But that's what the oddsmakers are saying the top-ranked Huskers are over the No. 9-rated Buffs. Nebraska coach Bob Devaney's only thought on that subject this week was, "I hope they're right."

He's also hoping that his Huskers, who own a 26-game unbeaten string and who have been charged with not having been tested by a good team yet in their 7-0 start, can prove the doubters wrong against what he calls "a good team."

"You don't beat LSU and Ohio State, particularly at Baton Rouge, La., and Columbus, Ohio, without being a good team," he adds. "Sure, they had a bad day at Norman, Okla., against Oklahoma (losing 45-17) but so has everyone else who has played Oklahoma, and that includes Texas, which is a good team."

Colorado beat Ohio State, 20-14, and LSU, 31-21, behind the coaches capsules

Nebraska's Bob Devaney — "This is a chance for us to find out how good we are. We don't know whether teams we've beaten so far were real good teams, but Colorado has proven itself by beating LSU and Ohio State."

Colorado's Eddie Crowder — "Nebraska is so sound and so talented in every area, it's extremely difficult to find any weakness. Their balance and depth are almost unbelievable."

running of sophomore Charlie Davis, quarterbacking of sophomore Ken Johnson and punt returning of Senior Clifford Branch, plus a defense led by Army veterans Herb Orvis and Bud Magrum that stopped Ohio State three times inside the CU ten-yard line.

Back of Week
Davis gained 175 yards while scoring two touchdowns in the win over LSU and was named national back of the week for the performance.

His 694 yards in 115 carries this season is more than any Nebraska back has gained and puts him fourth in the Big Eight.

Against Ohio State, Johnson scored twice by keeping the ball on the triple option and Branch ran a punt back 69 yards for a TD, one of three he has returned all the way this season.

To stop Colorado, you've got to stop their quarterback (Johnson or Joe Duenas), fullback (John Tarver) and their pitches (to Davis and Branch)," Devaney says.

To do this Nebraska has what many consider to be the best defense in college football in a No. 1 unit that has been labeled the Black Shirts.

They've allowed only one touchdown this season with the other five that have been posted by Husker victims coming against the reserves.

Running Plays Tough

The Husker defense has been particularly tough on running plays, which the Buffs have gone back to after an abortive effort at trying to throw the ball in that shellacking at Oklahoma a couple of weeks ago.

The NU defense has yielded only 67.9 yards per game on the ground, but the Buffs are averaging 289.2 yards via rushing.

While the Husker defense has been awesome and stingy, the NU offense behind the quarterbacking of Jerry Tagge, the Big Eight total offense and passing leader, has been both explosive and methodical.

The explosiveness has come primarily in the form of Tagge to Johnny Rodgers passes while the methodical method of scoring has been carried out by I-back Jeff Kinney and fullback Bill Olds on lengthy, time-consuming drives.

That offense has yet to be held to less than five touchdowns.

4,500 NU FANS . . . brave weather to stage pep rally in the East Stadium Friday that will be on ABC-TV's pregame show on KETV at 12:30 p.m.

Budget Hearings To Be This Fall

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Friday decided to hold formal hearings on major state agency budget requests prior to convening of the 1972 Unicameral Hearings are tentatively scheduled to begin Nov. 18.

Budget Chairman Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings said the precedent-shattering decision will allow his committee to have major appropriations recommendations ready when the 1972 session convenes.

Marvel had urged the committee to act early in order to avoid bumping into the 60-day time limit under which the 1972 session will operate.

Schedules Tentative

The tentative schedule — and Marvel emphasized its tentative nature, subject to later confirmation — calls for two days of formal hearings covering six agencies in November.

Included are the Department of Revenue, the Soil and Water Conservation Commission, the Military Department, the State Patrol, the Game and Parks Commission and the Department of Environmental Protection.

Five days of hearings are tentatively scheduled for December.

One three-day period will involve the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Education, the Department of Motor Vehicles, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Administrative Services, the Department of Health and the Department of Public Institutions.

The University of Nebraska is tentatively scheduled for one full day of hearings Dec. 8, and the four state colleges and the Nebraska Educational Television Commission will tentatively share the following day as the committee winds up its scheduled hearings.

Committee Tours Library

Committee members met Friday with University officials, then toured Love Library and Bessey Hall on the downtown Lincoln campus.

John Heussman, director of libraries, said Love Library services have "not been good enough to attract students into the library who should have been here."

The proposed library addition is needed primarily to hold more books, rather than strictly for study space, he said.

Library acquisitions should be increased from the latest annual rate of 77,000 volumes to about 100,000 volumes to meet student and faculty needs, he said.

There is still some space at the undergraduate library in Nebraska Hall, Heussman said.

"But we will have exhausted all space by 1973," he said.

Marvel said he has "heard from students that they go to Bennett Martin Library because they can't get any service here."

Heussman has been director since Aug. 1. The Bessey Hall tour was designed to show the university's need for new life sciences facilities.

Bessey was constructed in 1917 and serves as the major classroom laboratory building for botany, zoology and microbiology.

Life sciences instruction is spread throughout about 10 different buildings, senators were told.

13 Inches Snow Hits Crawford

Snow, freezing drizzle and fog continued to dominate Nebraska's weather Friday and in Crawford, in extreme northwestern Nebraska, the most snowfall in the state was recorded where the white stuff measured at least 13 inches deep. And it was still snowing there late Friday.

Light snow fell in most of the western area of the state during the day, while the central and eastern portions reported freezing drizzle with light rain.

And Saturday's forecast calls for snow in the central portions and moisture is expected to dampen Nebraska-Colorado football fans as the outlook includes "rain likely in the east."

Games Canceled

Many high school football games scheduled for Friday night from one end of the state to the other were either postponed or canceled. A complete list appears under "Football Scoreboard" on page 10.

Highways west of a diagonal line from Dundy County in southwestern Nebraska through Boyd County in the north were 70 to 100% ice-packed late Friday, the State Department of Roads reported.

Bridges and overpasses in that section of the state were especially dangerous due to icy conditions, a spokesman for the department said.

Another inch of snow fell at Chadron Friday, bringing the accumulation there to about six inches and light snow continued late in the day. The Dawes County sheriff's office warned of slick roads throughout the area.

Scottsbluff had about two and a half inches of snow on the ground. About 18 miles west of there, the snow depth was close to six inches.

Nebraska was on the edge of a "dangerous storm" dumping up to 18 inches of snow at Rawlins, Wyo., and also crippling transportation in parts of Colorado and Montana.

Tito Says Soviets Plan To Withdraw

Washington (AP) — The Soviet Union intends to withdraw its forces from the Middle East after the crisis in that area has been resolved peacefully, President Tito of Yugoslavia said Friday.

He was told this by Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev, Tito said at a National Press Club luncheon.

"Brezhnev has told me it is not correct, to believe that the Soviet Union would remain permanently in the Middle East. It will withdraw from Egypt and other Arab countries as soon as there is a solution," Tito said.

Brezhnev visited Tito in Belgrade last September.

Tito also said he and the Soviet leader "have the same opinions about the solution." Israel, he said, should withdraw behind its 1967 frontiers; after that it should get "strong guarantees of its territorial integrity" from the United States and the Soviets, perhaps joined by Britain and France.

It'll Be A Tricky Weekend

It'll be a tricky weekend all the way around, what with jack-o'-lanterns and other such spooky things right along with the change from daylight back to standard time. So our own jack-o'-lantern is equipped with a clock face to

British Troops Mount New Offensive

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP)

— British troops mounted a new offensive against Irish Republican Army guerrillas Friday, sweeping into downtown Belfast to search shoppers for guns and bombs.

IRA men retaliated by blowing up a police station, killing a chief inspector and injuring two constables.

The big gelignite bomb also blasted into rubble a grocery and a drug store and capped a day-long series of fund-raising holdups, snipings and bombings.

The death of the chief inspector, buried under the station debris, brought to 141 the number of persons killed since religious and political violence erupted in this British Province more than two years ago.

At midday, while streets bustled with shoppers, three British armored trucks wheeled up to block Ann Street. Soldiers in battle gear, backed by dogs trained to sniff out explosives and weapons, and electronic "gelignite sniffers," swarmed down the block.

Clients in about 50 stores were personally searched. No shopper escaped. The troops found nothing.

"The operation was designed to harass terrorists," said an army spokesman. "We are convinced they are moving weapons and explosives about the streets during the height of rush traffic."

Less than three hours later and less than two miles away, the Chichester Park police station blew up with a roar.

Another bomb, fitted into what appeared to be a transistor radio, blew up a dry goods store and a baby wear shop after searches following a telephoned tip failed to detect the explosive. No one was hurt.

Armed and masked men, reported to be IRA gunmen, held up a heating firm, the Tullyrosmearn Post Office and the Northern Bank at Rostrevor, County Down, all in Northern Ireland. Across the border in the Irish Republic another gang ambushed a post office truck. There was no immediate tally of the money taken.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic moved more troops to the border. Irish soldiers have had two serious confrontations in recent days with British troops engaged in blowing up border access roads.

Snipers wounded a British soldier in the Ardoyne area and the army said return fire hit a civilian. Partisans dragged him away.

Washington — The Senate voted down the Nixon administration's foreign aid authorization bill — the first time that a foreign aid bill requested by the administration in power had been rejected since 1943. The vote was 41 to 27. Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield said later that the vote was a signal that it was time to begin "a new foreign aid concept" — distributing the aid burden among more nations. (More On Page 1.)

Last-Ditch Legal Move Attempts To Stop Test

Washington (UPI) — Charging the Amchitka Island nuclear explosion could trigger an earthquake and tidal wave like that which struck the Hawaiian Islands in 1946, conservationists made a last-ditch legal attempt Friday to halt the underground weapons test the United States is set to carry out next week.

The government decided early Friday to abandon its claim of executive privilege and turn over for court review secret documents which conservationists say will prove their claim that the blast will cause serious environmental damage.

David L. Sive, attorney for the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility and six other groups opposing the test promptly asked U.S. District Judge George L. Hart to let him see the documents and to grant his plea for a preliminary injunction to halt the explosion.

Judge Hart announced he will study the reports over the weekend, with a ruling expected Monday.

An adverse ruling could again be appealed in the increasingly complex legal maneuvering intended to prevent the five-megaton explosion, the biggest ever detonated by the United States.

The Defense Department meanwhile rejected a request from Alaska's Gov. William A. Egan to station rescue ships along the Aleutians Island chain during the test to pickup fleeing villagers should a mishap occur.

Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard wired Egan that safety precautions planned by the Atomic Energy Commission were sufficient.

The government documents were screened Friday by the AEC, the White House Office of Science and Technology, the Council on Environmental Quality and the Environmental Protection Agency to delete any security material before the papers reached Hart.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Thursday to block the test, but affirmed an earlier Hart order that the government must let him examine the disputed documents privately. The Justice Department subsequently decided against a Supreme Court test of its executive privilege claim.

Sive filed an affidavit from David M. Evans, a Denver, Colo., geologist who said there was "a definite possibility" that the explosion would cause an enormous rise in fluid pressure resulting in crustal movement along faults in the Aleutian trench ocean floor off Amchitka.

This in turn, said Evans, could create a damaging "tsunami" or tidal wave like the one that struck Hawaii in 1946. The worst tidal wave on record, it was triggered by an earthquake of 7.4 magnitude on the Richter Scale.

The AEC, which by law had to submit an "environmental impact statement" in connection with the test, found the risk of a damaging tidal wave to be negligible.

The commission contends the explosion, code-named Cannikin, is essential to accurately measure the yield of the five-megaton spartan warhead for the Safeguard Antiballistic Missile System and thus minimize the risk of stockpiling a defective weapon.

President Nixon gave his personal approval to the test on Wednesday.

Winton Blount Resigns

Washington (AP) — With President Nixon's thanks for a job well done, Winton M. Blount resigned as postmaster general Friday to head back to Alabama and a possible bid for the U.S. Senate seat of Democrat John J. Sparkman.

When Blount met with Nixon at the White House and told him he was leaving his government post, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon expressed "his gratitude and appreciation for undertaking and accomplishing what many people thought was an impossible job" — reforming the unwieldy mail service.

Blount turned aside questions on whether he would run for the Senate, saying "I feel it is time for me to leave the Post Office Department and go back to Alabama and make up my mind as to what I should do in the future."

State Department Initiating Legal Action Against Cubans

Washington (AP) — The State Department announced Friday the Immigration and Naturalization Service was holding a hearing in New Orleans "as the first step toward the formal expulsion" of 22 Cubans who arrived Tuesday.

Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said the hearing was conducted under a law that requires legal procedures to determine whether aliens have entered the country illegally.

The United States informed the Cuban government Thursday night it would expel the men because they refused to leave voluntarily and Havana had ignored repeated requests for information.

The Cubans arrived in the United States unexpectedly Tuesday to attend a conference of sugar cane technologists. They had been denied visas earlier by the State Department and were put under detention upon arrival. The group includes three crewmen for the plane that brought them to New Orleans.

Bray said it was impossible to determine how long the expulsion process would take.

He said the aliens had a right to legal counsel for the hearing but that he did not know if they were represented by a lawyer.

The Cubans were denied visas under a U.S. policy against allowing Cubans to attend private meetings in the United States.

Bray said Cuban officials are allowed in the United States to attend the United Nations and meetings of related agencies and intergovernmental groups.

Powell Offers To Sell Stock

Washington — Lewis F. Powell Jr., one of the president's supreme court nominees, owns stock in 38 corporations with a total value of more than $1 million, a report by the Senate Judiciary Committee disclosed. Under a new set of ethical canons, judges are required to sell stocks that might require "frequent disqualification." Powell has promised to do "whatever is necessary and proper."

More Bribery Reported

New York — Virtually all contractors working in the city bribe policemen, the commission investigating police graft was told. Bribes to all regulatory agencies, said, add at least 5% to building costs. Later, a police captain said there was a pattern of organized corruption in the narcotics units on both the city and federal levels.

Rocky Mountain West Is Hit By Season's First Blizzard

By United Press International

The first blizzard of the season raged across the Rocky Mountain west Friday. It claimed the lives of eight persons in plane crashes, marooned hundreds of motorists and hunters in kneedeep snows and forced a poor people's tent city to close in Denver.

Four persons died when a twin-engine plane, weighted by ice from the storm, crashed near Brandon, Colo. The pilot, in serious condition with second degree burns, stumbled through the snow to safety.

Four other persons died when a single-engine aircraft crashed in a swirling snowstorm late Thursday on a ranch near Jackson, Wyo.

Nearly 1,500 motorists were stranded in southern Wyoming as drifts and visibility-smearing snow closed Interstate 80 across almost the entire width of the state.

One-thousand travelers packed 11 motels and hotels, a state hospital, National Guard armory, churches and private homes in Evanston, Wyo. Some 450 others thronged the tiny community of Little America, Wyo.

Snowplows were helpless against mounting drifts and state police said many hunters were isolated in out-of-the-way spots. Two hunters were missing in the Big Horn Mountains of northern Wyoming. Schools closed in many towns and cities.

Snow piled 18 inches deep at Rawlins, Wyo., and 17 inches at Lander, Wyo. The rest of the state had an average of 12 to 14 inches.

Denver's tent city shut down and its 35 occupants were housed in temporary quarters provided by the City Housing Authority.

The National Weather Service warned, "this is a dangerous storm," and advised against extensive travel in an eight-state area stretching from Utah and northern Arizona to Nebraska, Kansas and South Dakota.

It said strong, gusty winds and drifting snow would make driving "extremely hazardous" in parts of Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas.

Committee OKs Tax Cut

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Tax cuts for individuals totaling $5.7 billion over three years were approved by the Senate Finance Committee Friday.

The reduction would be achieved by raising the low income allowance and advancing the effective date of scheduled increases in personal exemptions and standard deductions.

The personal exemption now is $650 and is scheduled under existing law to rise to $700 in 1972 and $750 in 1973.

The bill would raise the exemption to $675 for 1971 income and $750 for 1972.

The standard deduction for those who do not itemize deductions is now 13% with a $1,500 ceiling. It is scheduled to rise to 14% or $2,000 in 1972 and 15% or $2,000 in 1973.

The bill would raise the deduction to 15% or $2,000 in 1972.

The low income allowance is a flat deduction in lieu of other deductions and in addition to personal exemptions.

Under existing law, the allowance is scheduled to drop from $1,050 to $1,000 next year.

The bill would raise the allowance to $1,300 next year.

The effect of a $1,300 allowance with a $750 personal exemption would be to make income tax-free up to $2,050 for a single person and up to $4,300 for a family of four.

Taxes on those moderately above these levels would be reduced.

China Accepts U.N. Seat

United Nations (UPI) — Communist China acknowledged its acceptance by the United Nations Friday and said it would send a delegation to the general assembly "in the near future."

No date was specified in a cablegram received by Secretary General Thant from Chi Peng-fel, acting foreign minister in Peking. But an informed diplomatic source here said, without confirmation that a sizeable delegation could be expected about next Thursday.

A U.N. spokesman said there was no confirmation "in the house" for this report.

The cablegram from Peking, a message in English, was the first communication received directly by the United Nations from Communist China since a

Sniper Kills Policeman

Fort Worth, Tex. (UPI) — A sniper with a high-powered telescopic-sight rifle Friday killed one policeman and injured another as they investigated a dice game shooting at a psychedelic nightclub.

The sniper eluded a police dragnet in the southeast section of the city — scene of a protest several hours earlier by three black groups.

A crowd quickly gathered after the shooting at the biracial nightspot where a Negro man and woman were wounded. Upwards of 300 persons surrounded the club but were dispersed peacefully after the shooting of the white officers.

Patrolman E. M. Belcher, 24, died instantly when a single bullet exploded his skull outside the Electric Circus nightclub. Metal and bone fragments hit officer Ronald G. Turner, 28, who was released after treatment.

The sniper may have been spurred by the crowd and a cry of "take the prisoner away from the police," investigators said. But, they said, they were unable to determine the exact timing of the cry or the source.

Belcher and Turner were set to the night club after a patrol fired 14 or 15 shots with a .22 caliber "Saturday Night Special" pistol, critically wounding Kenneth Wayne Harris, 23, and slightly injuring Debra Brooks, 19.

Three suspects were arrested in the Harris-Brooks shooting.

The sniper apparently fired from atop a hamburger stand 200 to 250 yards from the officers and fled in a green car.

A security officer at a nearby apartment complex told police he fired twice at a man carrying a rifle but did not hit him. The rifle, one bullet in the chamber, was found in a field behind the stand.

"A lot of blacks were standing around and they hassled the ambulance drivers pretty badly... it was pretty tense," said driver W. E. Van Hook who took Harris to the hospital and then was called back when the officers were shot. He said Belcher, married but no children, was gunned down in the parking lot.

Scattered Nails Cause 40 Flats

Ennis, Tex. (UPI) — Nails scattered along 50 miles of Interstate 45 between Ferris and Corsicana in North Central Texas caused an estimated 40 flat tires on passenger cars and trucks.

A highway patrol spokesman said a keg of roofing nails apparently busted open and leaked as the vehicle drove south on the highway.

Quarterly Sales Up

Omaha (AP) — Third quarter sales for Carpenter Paper Co. were up 10% over the same period a year ago, Robert C. Byrne, president, reported Wednesday.

Pittsburgh Riot Dismissed Too Lightly

By STEVEN LEVINE
Even granting that riot news analysis is not the journalistic vogue it was in, say, 1967, the shallowness of the coverage given over the trashing of downtown Pittsburgh on the night of Oct. 17 is difficult to explain. The majority of American newspapers settled for a straight story on the event run in the Monday editions, followed by your more or less format "desecrating editorial" for Tuesday. It would suggest there's more to this than that, and because the principals involved are white and primarily over 21, the great likelihood is that the whole business has been/will be dismissed more lightly than is appropriate. The very least I can do is to try for a bit more understanding.
So, let us examine the scene itself.
On Sunday afternoon the Pittsburgh Pirates knocked off the Orioles of nearby Baltimore 2 to 1, to secure the world series baseball championship for the National League.
It's hard to tell exactly what happened when the celebration began that night in downtown Pittsburgh. A victory parade was scheduled for the area and called off, leaving about 40,000 people down there with nothing much to do and considerable energy with which to do it.
Apparently, some fights got started, and a little looting, and

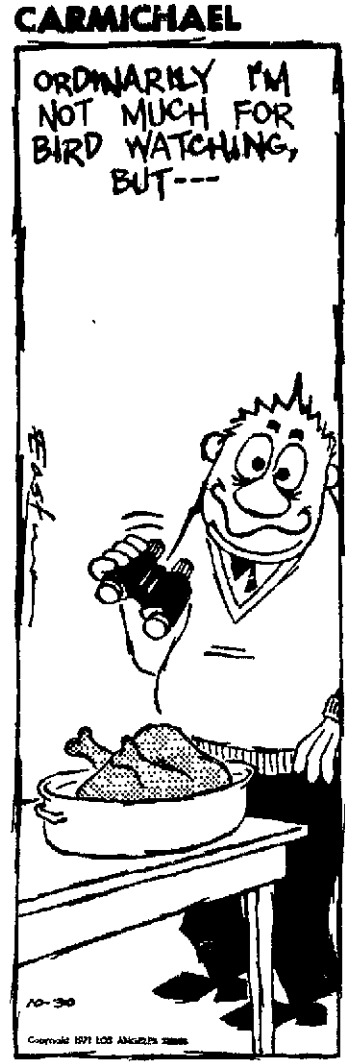

Steven Levine
More Understanding

composition of the mob itself: not disaffected non-whites, not students nor street people, but rather baseball fans: young to middle-age working and middle-class white people, primarily male.
Not Recently
This is not to say that these kinds of folk have never rioted before in the United States; it's just that they haven't done it recently. Not since the advent of post-war productivity has there been mainstream violence of this dimension. For such people to have become so greatly agitated in so short a time, as in the case of Argentina's soccer riots, something more than sporting zeal must have been aroused.
Some time ago I suggested that middle-American disaffection, while different in type from that of the nation's traditional militant dissidents, could lead down similar avenues.
Looking at Pittsburgh itself, it is easy to see where anger could build up.
Even under optimal conditions, it's not an ideal community. It suffers from all the usual urban ills: race polarization, pollution, an eroding tax abuse, and worse, is a center for basic industries, still almost a company town that lives close to an economic precipice pretty much all the time. Certainly now, with unemployment up and the continued expansion of imperial capital very much in doubt, it would be easy to imagine large numbers of Pittsburgh males over 25 feeling a decreasing commitment to the status quo, hot and somewhat drunk and not quite sure as to whether or not they still have anything to lose, and sort of wanting, in both a literal and figurative sense, to maybe knock off a piece right here and now.

All they needed to know they learned from watching TV. Why not go for what they wanted, just like the niggers and the hippies? That there was so much rape illustrates the urgency of the emotion. A woman's body is to the desperate, craven, repressed sadist inside the middle-American what the shiny store window is to the oppressed resident of Harlem, the unattainable gratification that has been deferred all these years spent chasing after the American dream.
Unhappy People
Unless I'm all the way off,

we were seeing the actions of really unhappy people.
Further, again, unless I'm way off, we'll be seeing much more of the same. For certain, Pittsburgh's problems, as I already suggested, are in no way limited to Pittsburgh. It is possible that if 40,000 people of similar background had gathered in the downtown streets of 15 other cities that night, for whatever purposes, like conditions would have ensued. More and more obviously, the growing alienation of working Americans is no minor matter.
At first the police, like the press, acting upon innate fellow feeling, tried to let the thing just go away, but when it wouldn't do so, moves had to be made, heads cracked, rioters busted. There transpired no less than a worker-police confrontation, and that is the stuff of which revolutions are made.
In short, Pittsburgh was a new ballgame.

ORDINARILY I'M NOT MUCH FOR BIRD WATCHING, BUT---

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Mom Takes Long Trip In Old, Converted Car

By ROBERT PETERSON
Question: — "We don't get to see Mother often as she lives 1,200 miles away. We can't afford much travel, and she has little more than her Social Security. But she's got an old Chevy and paid us a surprise visit last month. On arrival she said she'd spent only $25 for gas and oil, and hadn't spent a penny on restaurant meals or motels the five days she was on the road. When we asked how she did it she showed us how she'd removed half the front seat and all the back seat from her car and had installed a collapsible bed extending into the trunk. Then she had a tiny refrigerator and stove run by bottle gas, and had oilcloth curtains at the windows. She was snuggled as a bug when she stopped to fix meals or to sleep. What do you say?"
Answer: — Bravo — your mother's story is a reminder that if older people on limited incomes really want to do something, they can usually figure out a way to swing it.
Question: — "I'm very red-faced and don't quite know what to do. Dad, 76, has been living alone five years. Someone got him interested in a religious group and he began going to meetings where he met and began dating a 46-year-old widow. She's younger than I am and has two teenage children. He brought her over the other night. She was pleasant enough but looked rather dowdy. Dad owns his house and is worth maybe $60,000. It seemed pretty obvious she was after his money so I told her so. She just smiled and said she owned two houses and was worth twice as much as Dad. I challenged her and the next day a banker called at her request and confirmed her financial status. They're going ahead with marriage plans but I'm so embarrassed I can't face her. What can I do?"
Answer: — You must go see her and apologize. Then forget the incident and pretend it never happened. You were just looking out for your father's interests and it's customary to jump to monetary conclusions in appraising May-December romances. But as you've discovered, money may have nothing to do with it.
Question: — "Now that I'm retired from my job as a store

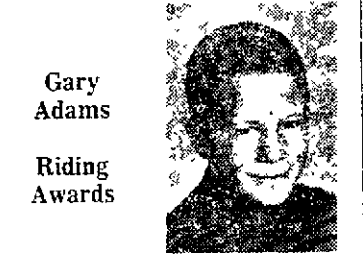

Court: Defendant Not Entitled To Jurors Of Own Race

By The Associated Press
A defendant in a criminal case is not constitutionally entitled to have a proportionate number of members of his own race on the jury hearing his trial, the State Supreme Court held Friday.
The court made the point in upholding the Lincoln County District Court conviction of Thomas G. H. Gutierrez on a charge of selling marijuana.
Gutierrez contended the jury in his case did not contain a proportionate number of Mexican-Americans.
Responding, the Supreme Court said: "It is difficult to conceive of a fairer or more practical method of selecting jurors than that used in Nebraska. The names are drawn by lot from lists of voters or registrants. The system is clearly within constitutional limits and renders impossible an intentional exclusion of any element of the population in a state or county where the privilege of voting is open to all who have attained the age required of an elector."

Rejected Contention
The Supreme Court also rejected Gutierrez' contention that his two-three year sentence was excessive and that a bag of marijuana should not have been introduced in evidence.
Reviewing a Sarpy County case, the Supreme Court refused to disturb the jury conviction of Dale T. Kirby, Papillion attorney, on an embezzlement charge. The charge grew out of a $6,000 payment by Martha Badura on a mortgage foreclosure decree involving land which was part of an estate for which Kirby was serving as administrator.
The Supreme Court rejected Kirby's contention that the lower court improperly refused to delay his trial so defense counsel could be appointed.
Commission Backed
In an appeal from a State Railway Commission order, the Supreme Court said the commission was within its rights in directing the Chicago & North Western Railway Co. to improve service on its line

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The debate over student fees at the University of Nebraska continues unabated in the wake of the recent campus conference on sex. There are proposals for abolishing the fees and proposals for simply changing the system for their use.

While some changes might be appropriately made in the system for use of such fees, it is difficult to see either how or why they could be totally eliminated. It has been suggested that the fees be abolished and that programs they support be left to sink or swim on their own merits.

Campus convocations or whatever they might be called would then be supported by gate receipts. It is argued that if the fees were eliminated, students would then have the funds needed to patronize those programs they like on an individual basis.

This is a great and democratic theory but would it work? Our own opinion is that it would not work, any more than it would work to put the Daily Nebraskan, the campus newspaper, on a voluntary subscription basis.

When it came time for students to cough up the $1 or $2 or whatever it might be for admission to the convocation, many of them would not have it. Students would not be walking about with the $50 or so in their pocket that now goes for fees.

And the Daily Nebraskan, very likely, would simply cease to exist if all students did not have a subscription to it paid out of student fees. On a voluntary basis, the newspaper just would not pick up the readers it has to have to survive.

It will be argued by some that if the publication is not good enough to make it on its own, then it should not exist but this is to ignore the purposes and special circumstances that surround the paper. It is not basically a profit-making operation.

On the contrary, the intent of the publication is to inform the university population of what is going on on campus, to provide a working laboratory for the School of Journalism and to give the student body some means of expression.

Maybe it does not always fulfill all these roles but the alternatives are pretty gloomy. It would be a major and highly risky adventure to turn the publication into a commercial enough operation to support itself.

The whole business of student fees boils down to the same thing that affects the university at various places along the line. The problems stems from the fact that many people do not like from time to time what appears in the newspaper or the programs offered through the student government as convocations.

Then, the objectors or dissidents argue that no one should be forced to support something with which he does not agree. That is a lot of nonsense, to put it lightly.

All of us go through life supporting a multitude of things with which we do not personally agree but which we recognize represent a majority decision on the best way to get something done. Do we cut off our church support when we don't like what the minister or church council does?

There is far from any unanimity among taxpayers but all taxpayers have to pay their assessment, whether they like all public expenditures or not. We all support the educational system, even though we may take issue with individual matters now and then.

The whole point is that if anything has to have universal acceptance before it can be given universal financial support, we would have nothing at all. We would, in fact, still be living in the dark ages, even in the private sector of our economy.

Not even a private corporation operates with total agreement among all concerned. It is simply impossible to achieve a total absence of conflict or disagreement and to argue for is to destroy all hopes of progress.

Additionally, we wonder when people will ever come to recognize that education is a learning process, not an exercise in propaganda. You can't go around refusing to understand everything you don't like unless you want to become a bigoted idiot. The day we eliminate student fees will be the day we put on blinders to shield us from the reality of the world around us.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

The Home Remedy
Against Burglaries

NEW YORK — Crime is either (a) up 11 per cent, (b) slowing down, or (c) both (depending on whether your statistics were cooked up by the FBI or the attorney general), but the average city dweller isn't waiting around to see who wins that argument.

He's too busy concocting home remedies to fool his friendly neighborhood thief.

And it probably says something about the effectiveness of President Nixon's "law and order" campaign that depending on the police for protection is way down on most homeowners' lists.

Americans spend around $100 million a year on complicated burglar alarms, locks and outside lighting. Residents in high-crime areas have bowed to the inevitable and called the wrought-iron man to come put bars on their street-floor windows.

Then, to deal with the burglar who gets in anyway, they fall back on their own handy-dandy remedies.

These include an incredible assortment of sneaky ideas, most of them as obvious as under-the-mattress. One lady in our neighborhood keeps valuable rings frozen in her ice cube trays. Another hides her rubies and emeralds under the stems of a fake flower arrangement.

The latest gimmick is to throw the burglar a bone and hope he'll grab it and leave without stealing anything really valuable. The bone, of course, is a $20 bill. Placed on a table near the entry.

People who practice this "burglar bait" figure it's cheap insurance — when it works. And if they're nostalgic about the good old days when all you had to do to discourage a burglar was lock the door, they don't show it. It may smack of "trick-or-treat," but it's the way some people have to live these days.

Because, no matter how Attorney General Mitchell pretties up the picture, your chance of being robbed, burgled, mugged, murdered or raped is now 1 in 36. If you live in a big city, the odds get closer: 1 in 19.

Life's a little safer in the suburbs: 1 in 47; and a lot more so in rural areas: 1 in 108.

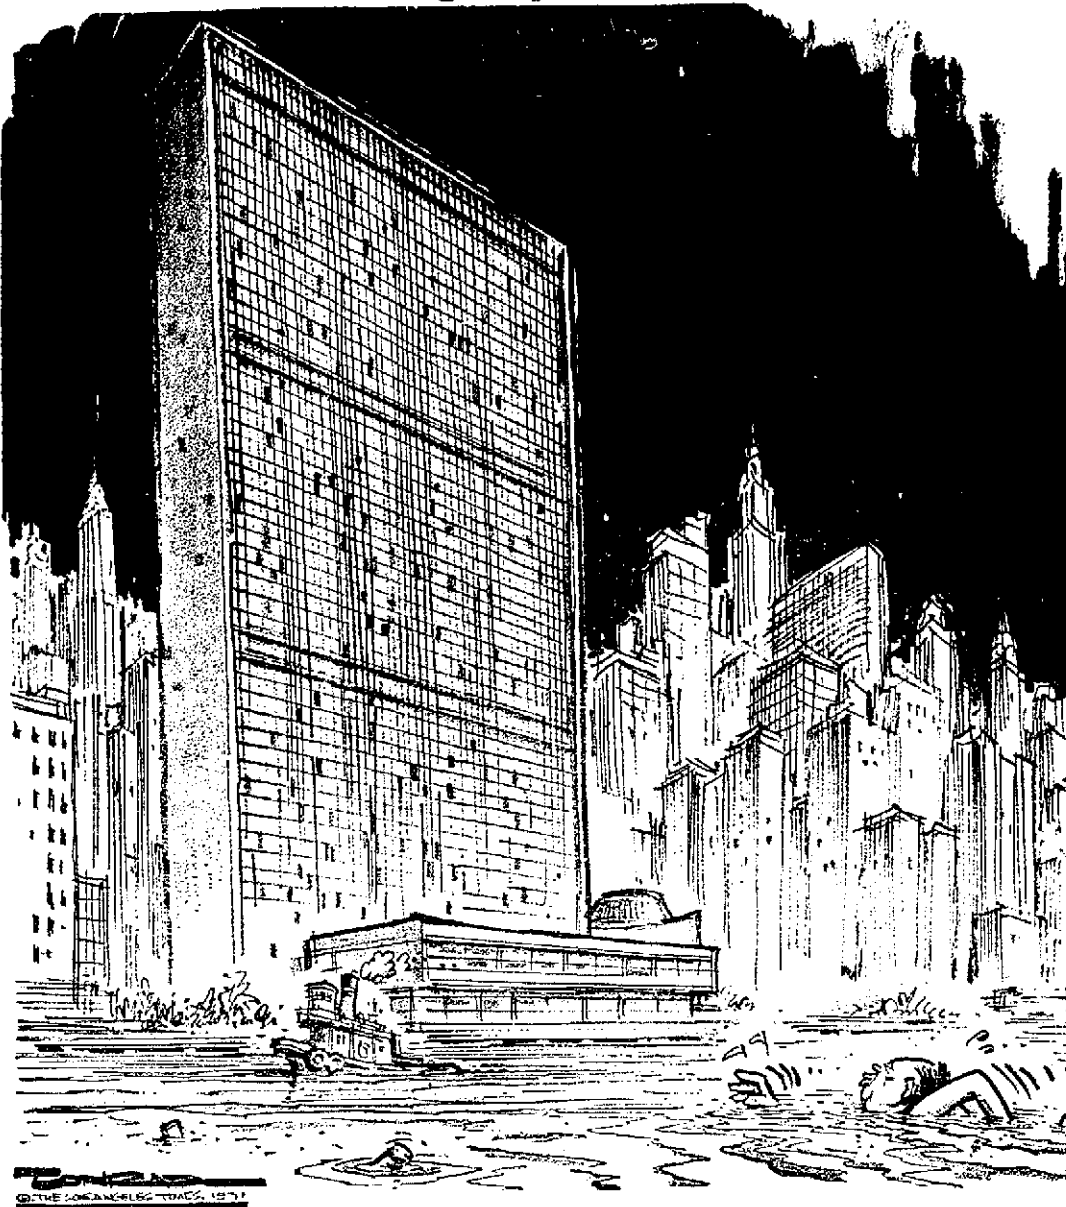

Last year there were 2,168,300 burglaries (up 142 per cent in the last 10 years); 1,746,000 larcenies (up 245 per cent); and 329,940 aggravated assaults (up 117 per cent).

That's the crimes that were reported. Many people don't bother. Maybe because police caught only 29 per cent of the robbers and 19 per cent of the burglars. Crimes against property and crimes of stealth according to a West Coast police chief, "are most difficult to solve."

Still, they're trying. Across the country, cities are hiring more policemen, setting up methadone centers to cure drug addicts, and training the public to report suspicious neighborhood doings through "crime alert" programs.

But until they get those statistics sliding downward, your best bet is probably a mighty nervous dog... with an 80-pound growl.

Chairman Mao Is Alive And Well
And Swimming Up The East River

Cooler Heads Prevail

Cooler heads seem to be prevailing in the U.S. Senate in the wake of the United Nations action Monday in granting membership to Red China while expelling Taiwan. Those angered by the expulsion of the Nationalist government failed to muster any impressive show of strength on a straight-out bid to reduce American contributions to the U.N.

Although approving a non-binding resolution by Sen. James L. Buckley, Con.-R. of New York, urging President Nixon to negotiate a reduction in the percentage of U.N. costs paid by the United States from 31.5% to 25%, the Senate earlier strongly voted down, 55-28, Buckley's amendment to cut $101.5 million of the $139 million in the foreign aid bill for U.N. programs. Buckley's amendment, not aimed at regular U.S. dues paid to the United Nations, would have eliminated $100 million for the U.N. development fund and $1.5 million for the U.N.'s world food program.

The vote on the Buckley amendment was a victory for the more level-headed senators who do not want to see the United States sink to the depths of pettiness occupied by some U.N. member states who celebrated what they saw as a humiliating defeat for the U.S. with undisguised and unrestrained glee.

Unhappily, Nebraska Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska joined the minority of senators who apparently would rather see the U.S. truly humiliate itself by picking up its ball and going home. The American delegation to the U.N. worked diligently—if in vain—to save Taiwan from expulsion and it would be dishonoring their efforts if the homefolk were to throw tantrums.

There plainly is a need to reassess America's financial commitment to the world organization. Fair share contributions from all members should be sought and more attention should be paid to defaulting nations, some of whom are living in the lap of American luxury while diplomatically stabbing this nation in the back.

But the time for review of the U.S. financial contributions to the U.N. should come after the dust has settled on the Taiwan question.

Lincoln-Omaha Future

In the past several years there have been a number of long-range plans tossed about concerning the development of land and facilities between Lincoln and Omaha. Among them have been the Platte River Dam proposal, which was estimated to cost in the hundreds of millions of dollars, the Lincoln-Omaha rapid transit scheme, a joint Lincoln-Omaha airport to serve eastern Nebraska and western Iowa and now a new proposal to build a "sports and agri-business" complex midway between the two cities.

Omaha Mayor Eugene Leahy's plan, which would include a 100,000-seat domed stadium which would be a replacement for the State Fair Grounds, the Ak-Sar-Ben grounds and race track and the University of Nebraska football stadium, echoes somewhat the idea of former Gov. Val Peterson, who proposed construction of the world's largest roofed stadium near Ashland where the Interstate Highway crosses the Platte River, as a spectacular for the 1967 Nebraska centennial and as a lasting monument.

TOM WICKER

U.N.'s Seating Of Peking Faced Up To Reality;
To Respond Otherwise Would Be Only Spite

NEW YORK — In politics and diplomacy, facing reality seems the exception rather than the rule, and the half-truth, the half-measure and the blindfold are commonplace. If for no other reason, the United Nations' clearcut decision to seat the Peking government and oust the Nationalist's was unusual. Unfortunately, the politics of unreality already has started to reassert itself.

What the delegates did on Monday night faced reality in two significant ways. The first, and most important, was in the simple recognition of what most of the world has long conceded—that the communist government in Peking is, in fact, the controlling regime for the vast Chinese mainland and population, and faces no actual challenge from the Nationalists on Taiwan.

The second reality derived from the first. If, in fact, Peking represents the Chinese people and mainland, then Taipei could not also claim to do so; it could at best represent something else. But what was at stake was the representation of China. Thus, although American politics and cold war history have made a "two Chinas policy" desirable in some ways, the concept had to basic logic—particularly since the one thing on which Peking and the Nationalists agree is that Taiwan is an integral part of China.

If facing reality were to be the rule rather than the exception, the next step would be to find some acceptable way to deal with the question of Taiwan, particularly the native Taiwanese people as distinguished from the Nationalist Chinese. But the votes had scarcely been cast at the United Nations before all sorts of unrealities began to obscure the result.

It was only to be expected, of course, that Chiang Kai-shek would protest bitterly, although his claim that the United Nations had taken "illegal action" echoed rather hollowly. Similarly, the Nationalist plan to continue in the World Bank and other U.N. agencies is likely to run squarely against the hard fact of a new situation.

That situation is that Peking has won the long contest for world recognition as the representative of China; maybe it actually did so when President Nixon announced his forthcoming visit, but the vote in the United Nations signed, sealed and delivered the victory. Twist and turn and delay as they might, the Nationalists are unlikely to find an escape, at least for long, from that reality.

Nor will any of the various unrealities being voiced in Congress and elsewhere, even if acted upon, retrieve the old situation; they can only make the new situation less fruitful and more dangerous. Thus, Senator Goldwater, advocating in his old-time form an American withdrawal from the United Nations and its expulsion from these sacred shores, would only destroy the usefulness of the world organization and further isolate the United States, for no visible gain. This would be spite diplomacy.

More serious proposals to reduce the American contribution to the United Nations and its agencies come perilously close to the same thing. Even Senators Mansfield and Scott, proposing reductions on the ground that the United Nations spends too much anyway, which may be true, would leave the United States open to charges that it was acting in retaliation and in the spirit of the bad loser.

This is particularly so since most proposals for reducing the American contribution would not affect the United Nations so much as its subsidiary agencies — the Children's Fund, for instance, and the World Health Organization. Is the wealthiest nation on earth (it's time we talked about what's right with America) really to cut its contributions to such activities because a bare majority of the

LANGSTON HUGHES

They Had A Dream

From an apartment in Harlem, Langston Hughes told about the tribulations of his people in an avalanche of words over a span of 40 years. Sometimes he told the story with gentle irony, sometimes with biting satire, but never did he tell it in rage.

A versatile writer, Hughes' works encompassed the entire literary spectrum: poems, short stories, novels, autobiographies, newspaper columns, anthologies, plays and the lyrics for a musical.

In all, he produced some 37 volumes of his own work and out of it he came to be regarded as the leading poet of his race.

Born in Joplin, Mo., in 1902, Hughes was the victim of a broken home. He was raised by his grandmother and after her death, by an aunt. He wrote his first poem for graduation ceremonies at his grammar school in Lincoln, Ill. That was in 1915.

Shortly afterward, his mother remarried and moved with young Langston to Cleveland where he attended Central High School and became seriously committed to writing. After high school, Hughes enrolled at Columbia University but somehow he didn't fit and quit after his first year.

For the next few years, Hughes knocked around the world on a freighter, visiting Africa, Holland, Italy and winding up in Paris where he landed a cook's job in a Parisian bistro.

In 1925, he came home broke and took a job as busboy in a Washington, D.C., hotel. Then he got his big break. As poet Vachel Lindsay dined at the hotel one day, Hughes summoned up his courage and slipped a sheath of his verse on the table beside Lindsay.

Lindsay read it, was impressed and helped Hughes break through to a publisher. That verse, "Weary Blues," came out in 1926 as Hughes' first book. A second volume followed in 1927 and Hughes caught a wave of popularity.

Feeling a need for more education, Hughes enrolled at Lincoln University and before his graduation in 1929 had written his first novel, "Not Without Laughter," published in 1930. It won him the Harmond Award for literature.

In 1933, he traveled to the Soviet Union to work on a scenario on Negro life in the United States. In 1936 Hughes, who sympathized with the Loyalist cause, worked as a war correspondent for the Baltimore Afro-American during the Spanish Civil War.

These acts brought his loyalty under question and later led to frequent picketing of his lecture tours in the United States. Finally, in 1953 he was questioned and cleared of alleged early communist sympathies by the Senate Permanent Committee on Investigations.

Hughes pricked white America's conscience with his writing and particularly with his newspaper column featuring Mr. Jesse B. Semple, an imaginary Harlem street philosopher.

In 1960, Hughes was awarded the NAACP's Spingarn medal and in 1961 he was elected to the National Institute of Arts and Letters. But his popularity began to wane with the rise of militant blacks who found him too amiable. Hughes' reply to them was: "Humor is a weapon, too, of no mean value against one's enemies."

Hughes, who never married, died in 1967, at the age of 65.

Access Problem

Lincoln, Neb.

May I add my thoughts to those of Curtis Andrews in Wednesday's Star? The handicapped of Lincoln face an additional problem besides transportation. There are many, and not just those confined to wheelchairs, who find it difficult or impossible to climb steps or even curbs. A number of our senior citizens could be included in this category. Place these people at the southwest corner of 13th and O. The sidewalk which formerly slanted down to the street has been replaced with a curb, and it is necessary to go to the north side of the corner, off into the traffic coming from the west, and walk or wheel around the corner in the street in order to go east.

Gateway Shopping Center should be an ideal place for a handicapped person to go shopping, so many stores around the center mall, all within easy access, wouldn't you think? But how does a wheelchair traveler or one unable to step up get onto the mall level? My last visit there found one "ramp," a movable board south of Montgomery Wards, which had to be held in place by a member of my family as I walked up it. There used to be an easy ramp up to the sidewalk north of Miller & Paine's, but this has been removed, and a curb put in. I can't help but wonder why this was done.

One more instance. Several weeks ago, our new southeast branch library was dedicated. How many wheelchairs will be able to climb the steps included in the front entrance of this building, which is supposed to be accessible to all the public?

Yes, transportation for the severely handicapped is very much needed but also access to the buildings at our destination.

SHIRLEY SWAN

Lincoln, Neb.

On behalf of the Lincoln Southeast Key Club, I would like to extend our sincere thanks to the many residents in the southeast area who donated their old newspapers, magazines, cardboard, etc., to our paper drive. With this help and cooperation, our drive was a successful one. It is indeed a comforting thought to know that we have a community which is concerned in helping the environment in these ecologically troubled times.

In regard to the October 18 "On Target" column, we would like to advise that an active campaign organization is being formed in support of Henry "Scoop" Jackson.

We believe that Henry Jackson is the man for the people. He is the most celebrated conservationist in Congress. He has a kind of hard-rock independence that people like. He makes up his mind by looking at facts.

He wants peace, but he doesn't think military weakness is the way to get it.

He's earned the confidence of five presidents, but he has never hesitated to speak out when he thought they were wrong.

When Jackson takes the Senate floor to talk about water power or welfare legislation, national defense or nuclear energy, his colleagues pay attention. They know Jackson's judgment can be trusted.

"Scoop" Jackson plays it straight and that is why we are proud to be a part of "Scoop's Troop" on his march to the presidency.

Patents

Lincoln, Neb.

I can see why Mr. Andrews took the time and effort to write his letter (Star, Oct. 27). I can see where Lincoln could set up a manufacturing plant to build a bus to fill such a demand, also a wheel-chair for such use. Perhaps it would be advisable to check the patent office in Washington, D.C. to learn just how open the field is.

I have two patents in the patent office. One is on a lawn or garden hose stand with a common hose nozzle that can be adjusted for the space one cares to water.

Another is going through the patent office right hand, and will be in the patent office the early part of December. It is for a flying insect killer that is very effective. It does not contaminate the air we breathe and is very economical to use. We have tested this in several places in Nebraska and in several other states. Much of this work could be done by handicapped personnel with the right management.

Speaking of Nebraska, with fewer than 20 people per square mile, with sound management, Nebraska's soil and water would support 200 per square mile.

E. W. FRANSSEN, SR.

Lincoln, Neb.

I read the letter of William G. Stype, Jr. describing his unwillingness to contribute his time to the cub scouts' program, from several points of view.

As a leader, I wondered what chances the youth of today have in becoming successful adults, if their parents demonstrate their affection for these boys by their eagerness to write elaborate letters, rather than working with these youngsters in developmental programs.

And, I wondered how a minister could ignore the advice offered some 2,000 years ago by Jesus of Nazareth, who said that we should be willing to give time to children, even if we are busy.

Court, Press Criticized For 'Inundation Of Smut'

... By Founder Of Citizens For Decent Literature

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The articulate Charles H. Keating, founder of Citizens for Decent Literature, Inc., Friday blasted the Supreme Court and the media for contributing to the "inundation of pornography" in contemporary America.

Speaking at Gov. J. James Exon's Seminar on Obscenity Law Enforcement, the Cincinnati lawyer referred to advertisements and said newspapers were acting as "unwitting pimps" for the "whorehouses on the screen."

Keating, publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer, said the media has the responsibility for providing decent entertainment and said he sees no conflict with freedom of the press on this issue.

High Court Hit
Regarding the Supreme Court, Keating criticized the late Justice Hugo Black. Justice William O. Douglas and former Justice Abe Fortas whose decisions, he said, have "contributed to anarchy" in the U.S. and have "misguided youth."

"Nine old men sitting in Washington have precluded decency," he said.

However, the nominations of William Rehnquist and Lewis Powell to the high court, he said, have promise of a "new ball game."

"I think these two new appointments will bring reason

Raymond Gauer ... CEDL's executive director.

back to law," said Keating, who authored "The Report That Shocked the Nation."

Keating indicated that just since February several decisions have been handed down which have proved valuable in the CDL legal arsenal.

Their Day Is Done

"We're a long way from having them on the run, but they've seen their day," he said.

Earlier in the seminar which was designed to provide the 60 county attorneys present with the legal expertise they need for pornography cases, CDL Executive Director Raymond Gauer of Los Angeles held a press conference.

In reference to the controversial musical "Hair," Gauer said his organization shared concern about it, but that it was not as "obscene" as other entertainment.

"Hair" is a reflection of the downgrading of the media, but by comparison it is innocuous."

Gauer said movie ratings are "the greatest fraud ever perpetrated on the American public."

The method the seminar advocated for fighting "smut" was the use of public nuisance statutes and knowledgeable lawyers.

"The community has a right to protect itself," Gauer stated.

Symptoms Cited

As symptoms of current "immortality," Gauer cited the increased rates of venereal disease, illegitimacy and divorce.

Keating filed the lone dissent with the Presidential Commission on Pornography and Obscenity.

The commission, according to Keating, knew what it wanted to find before it had all the facts.

"They found what they were looking for. Eighty per cent of the commission members never read the findings," he said.

Another CDL attorney attending the seminar termed the commission report "the Magna Carta of pornographers."

The commission's findings were that there is not a cause-and-effect relationship between pornography and sex crimes.

Youth-in-Action Waverly Girl Sparks Halloween Festivities

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

About 150 Lincoln youngsters were treated to both delights and Halloween fears this week, thanks partly to the efforts of a Waverly girl and her fellow 4-H Junior Leaders.

The event was a holiday party, complete with apple-bobbing, cake-walks, party festivities and the appearance of a Halloween ghost — all for members of the inner-city 4-H clubs in Lincoln.

The party came off with the help of several organizations, including the Lancaster County Junior Leaders, a unique 4-H organization designed specifically to provide leadership for 4-H effort.

The event was one of several service projects in which the county Junior Leaders have participated, explained Sue Loseke, a 17-year-old Waverly High School senior who has been a junior leader for five years.

9-Year Veteran

A nine-year 4-H veteran, Sue has as a Junior Leader helped organize a Lincoln 4-H club and led a cooking club for pre-teenage boys.

She has also given special demonstrations for other clubs in the county and has organized fair entries when it comes time to ready 4-H presentations for the annual shows.

This week, Sue and some of the other 75 Junior Leaders in the county organized and operated one of the booths for the Halloween party for the inner-city club members, age 8 to 13.

The Junior Leaders organized a balloon-popping booth, while several University of Nebraska student groups and some Union College students set up other activities for the youngsters.

Highlights

Highlights of the evening were awarding prizes for best costumes and a lights-out appearance of a Halloween ghost, who brought squeals mixed with fear and delight from the

Two People Killed On Icy Highways

By Associated Press

Two persons were dead in highway accidents related to icy road conditions in Nebraska Friday and at least nine personal injury accidents were reported in the two communities where the fatalities occurred.

Most recent report came from Norfolk where Mrs. Jean I. Osborn 35, of Norfolk died of injuries suffered in a collision on an icy bridge east of Norfolk, where four auto accidents hospitalized six persons in a 12-hour period.

Mrs. Osborn's westbound automobile went out of control and collided head on with a car driven by Adolph C. Claussen, 38, of Wayne, Madison County

Soshnik Says He Believed Rozman Prevented Progress

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Former University of Nebraska-Lincoln President Joseph Soshnik Friday testified he believed Prof. Stephen Rozman "prevented progress" at one point during negotiations in an occupied NU building in May 1970.

Soshnik also testified that he neither asked Rozman to be present during the occupation, nor did he ask him to leave the building the night of May 4 nearly a year and a half ago.

The comments came on the final day of testimony in the trial on the suit brought by Rozman against the NU Board of Regents.

Rozman, a former assistant professor of political science, lost his job at NU when the regents voted last February not to renew his contract because of alleged inappropriate actions during antiwar activities shortly after U.S. troops moved into Cambodia.

Cases Rested

Both Patrick Healey, Rozman's attorney, and university attorney Flavell Wright rested their cases in mid-afternoon after nearly

Man, 90, Robbed Of Life Savings

A 90-year-old man was robbed of his life savings Friday night by two men who broke into his home and subdued him by throwing a blanket over his head, police said.

Louis Feuerstein of 1119 No. 12th, told police that two men came to his door about p.m. and said they wanted to use his phone.

Feuerstein refused and was calling police when they broke through the door and threw a flannel blanket over him, knocking off his glasses.

Police detective Kenneth Ideen said the suspects took an undetermined amount of money from the house and unscrewed the light bulbs and threw them away before leaving.

Feuerstein was uninjured and managed to replace a light bulb and phone police.

Police said Feuerstein could provide only a sketchy description of the men due to his poor eyesight.

Students, Faculty Attend Consumer Group Meeting

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — About 30 students and faculty members at Creighton University attended an organizational meeting of a Ralph Nader-style consumer protection group Friday.

Karen Walker, 22, who represents a temporary coordinating committee in the state, said the group would try to recruit other persons.

She said eventually the state group plans to organize chapters at all Nebraska colleges.

three days of testimony. U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom, who is hearing the case, set 9 a.m. Nov. 13 for final arguments from both attorneys.

"I ought to read and digest all the documentary materials" presented as evidence in the case before hearing closing arguments, Urbom said as he recessed the trial.

Soshnik, now an Omaha investment banker, was chief administrative officer for the Lincoln campuses when students began an all-night sit-in at the Military and Naval Science Building May 4, 1970.

Soshnik Negotiates

During the night, Soshnik and other administrators negotiated with students in an attempt to secure a voluntary evacuation of the building.

Rozman has admitted he took part in the negotiations, but he has maintained he did so in an attempt to mediate what he considered a deadlock in the talks between administrators and students.

Soshnik testified under cross-examination by Wright that he "felt at some points we were getting some student agreement" when Rozman "persisted" in advancing the position that administrators must take a "stronger stand."

Rozman has testified he did not consider himself a spokesman for or a representative of the students.

Soshnik said Friday that he "thought Dr. Rozman had been identified with the students and their representatives in the negotiations."

Working Jointly

"They were working cooperatively, jointly," he said.

Soshnik said he remembered Rozman from only the first of two negotiating sessions and that he recalled only one specific statement by the former professor.

The former administrator, who resigned earlier this year, said he had asked some other faculty members, but not Rozman, to come to the building that night.

Under questioning from Healey, Soshnik also said he did not ask Rozman to leave.

Soshnik also conceded that no disciplinary action had been taken against students and other uninvited faculty members, although he said some were questioned several months later.

'End' Occupation

He said his hope during the night was to "bring the occupation to an end" without disruption or violence.

Soshnik said he had been told during the night there were threats of violence, while Rozman has said he heard no such threats and saw no disruption of "normal university operations."

Rozman has testified that he entered the building in an attempt to "communicate" with the federal government his disagreement with foreign policy.

He has said no one was attempting to bar the door when he entered and that no one asked him to leave and that he did not attempt to act as a leader of the students.

Much of the day's testimony came from Rozman, who was asked repeatedly by Wright to clarify his feelings of concern about the events and about an allegation that Rozman called former Vice Chancellor G. Robert a "liar."

Hideaway Granted License For Retail Package Liquor

Despite opposition from area residents and recommended denial by the Lincoln City Council, Hideaway Inc. has been granted a retail package liquor license for a location in the retail complex of Treasure City South.

According to information on file in the city clerk's office, the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission has granted the license for the northeast corner of 27th and Highway 2.

Attempts had been made for more than six months to obtain a liquor license for a retail outlet at the location. In March, 1971, Hideaway Inc. made application for a Class C Liquor license which was denied by the Liquor Commission after a recommendation of denial had been made by the City Council.

Diversification, Aggregate Growth Proposed Economic Goals In State

Diversification of the economy and growth in the level of aggregate economic activity are proposed economic goals for Nebraska during the coming decade.

The goals were set forth in Business in Nebraska, a publication of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bureau of Business Research, College of Business Administration.

However, the publication emphasizes the goals were presented "in order to stimulate further thought and discussion of the subject." The goals "are the product of many minds" having been discussed over a period of many years by numerous persons, groups and agencies.

No implication is intended that these goals are favored or advocated by the Bureau of Business Research, NU, any agency of state government, or any private group or organization, according to E. S. Wallace, director of the Bureau of Business Research and author of the article.

Diversification

Diversification of the economy can be accomplished by broadening the economic base which implies expansion, not only in manufacturing, but also in such areas as services, education, finance, insurance, and the travel and tourist industries, Wallace noted.

Emphasizing the economic impact of further processing to add value to raw materials and semi-finished goods that are either locally produced or economically accessible will also result in diversification of the economy, it was pointed out.

Diversification through more efficient and innovative "utilization of the state's natural, human and man-created resources means continued increases in productivity in agriculture, services, trade and manufacturing, as well as selectivity in the areas of expansion sought."

Growth in the level of aggregate economic activity that will achieve and maintain a level of per capita income in excess of the national average is also desirable, Wallace declared.

Job Activity Needed

Economic activity is also needed to promote maximum employment opportunities, thereby helping to bring about continuation of low levels of underemployment, reduction of underemployment and cessation of net outmigration, the article stressed.

Wallace also urged economic activity that will contribute to a better geographical balance of population distribution by encouraging regional economic development throughout the state.

It was pointed out that half of Nebraska's population is concentrated in 4% of the land area. "If greater dispersion is desired, cooperative regional efforts toward economic development in other parts of the state are needed," Wallace said.

Ugly Head -- Pretty Face

"I never thought I'd raise a buffalo, let alone one in hot pants," sighs Mrs. Irwin Goldenberg. She is referring to her daughter, Martha Hill, daughter of the late Arthur Hill, who will wear the Colorado buffalo head "Ralphie" at today's Nebraska-Colorado game.

Under the massive and bulky buffalo head stands Martha, an attractive 1970 graduate of East High and now a spirit-filled sophomore at the University of Colorado in Boulder. Martha attributes her love of football to her years in Lincoln, and relates, "I grew up on football. It's a way of life in Lincoln."

The idea for a Colorado mascot being a girl came about through Martha's persuasive and winning enthusiasm. Not even today's nasty weather dampens Martha's spirit as she parades the Ralphie head wearing brown hot pants, brown blouse and brown suede boots. She is also secretary of the Association of Students at the University of Colorado.

And so, underneath the Colorado buffalo's ugly head is a girl with Nebraska spirit and a pretty face.

TOWN TALK

That day has arrived — game day. This time the University of Colorado is the foe, and needless to say Lincoln is brimming with guests — from Colorado.

Oddly enough some of the visitors from Colorado have their hearts in Nebraska — and their hopes on Big Red. Among those former Lincoln residents who were well known on the University of Nebraska campus are Mr. and Mrs. James Evinger who arrived on Friday to be the game weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Joy.

Complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Evinger, Mr. and Mrs. Joy will be host and hostess at a post-game cocktail party at their home.

We understand that Mr. Evinger will be leaving on Sunday to return to Boulder, but Mrs. Evinger will linger in Lincoln for a week — visiting with their daughter, Miss Sally Evinger, Kappa Kappa Gamma at the University of Nebraska — and her numerous Lincoln friends.

Complimenting Mrs. Evinger on Tuesday will be Mrs. G. Robert Ross who will entertain at luncheon at the Lincoln Country Club. The guest list will include former college friends of the honored guest.

There are some exciting guests from the west coast who are in town for the game weekend, also — We'll tell you about them later.

Beta Alumni Honor Burton Folsom

One hundred and thirty-two years ago a brand new organization was born. It was Beta Theta Pi.

This celebrated birth took place on the eighth day of the eighth month, with eight members in the year of 1839. It was an exceedingly healthy entry into the college world, and Beta Theta Pi grew to be a strong and vigorous fraternity.

On Thursday evening the Lincoln Beta Theta Pi alumni paid tribute to one of its members, Burton W. Folsom who, for the past four years from 1967 to 1971 has more or less guided the destiny of the fraternity as General Secretary. Back in the beginning of Beta Theta Pi the fraternity had no national president, and the General Secretary assumed the duties. Even now, although there is a national president the General Secretary's responsibilities are great.

Mr. Folsom, who recently relinquished his office, took over the duties of General Secretary from his elected office of General Treasurer by request. This was due to the sudden death of Joseph J. Romoda who served as General Secretary from 1965 to 1967.

The tribute paid to Mr. Folsom was a dinner at the Lincoln Country Club with William F. Swanson as master of ceremonies. Speakers were Dr. Wilbur G. Wiedman, John C. Whitten, J. Taylor Greer, Max Meyer, Paul W. Hyland and Gene H. Tallman.

PARTIES KEEP THE GHOSTS BUSY

In the picture we find two very young ladies from Cedars Home — (extreme left and right) being highly entertained by two DECA members, Paul Viquain and Lori Waggoner.

The meek at heart had better lock their doors tomorrow night, for trouble is a-brewing. The witches and goblins, ghosts and the jike will be donning their spirits and seeking kind souls who will feed their little tummies with goodies to last through Christmas.

Tomorrow night is Halloween, and, if you don't have a treat, be ready for a 'trick.' This generation of ghosts and goblins seems cuter than ever, with costumes that sparkle with originality.

Along with the traditional spooks, will be gypsy girls and boys, scarecrows, leopards, fashionable ladies, and maybe even a road runner or two.

We know all of this, because we were able to take a sneak preview at some of the Halloween parties. Two of the parties were sponsored by Blue Bird troops.

Second graders at the May Morley grade school, who are residents of Wellington Greens, Trendwood and Lincolnshire, had a grand time this week at the Wellington Greens Clubhouse. The girls are members of The Nice Blue Birds troop, and began their party by decorating pumpkins which were later to be carved out. It was one big heap of fun, as shown above, and taking part in the festivities were (from bottom far left, clockwise): Joni Haith, Kurstin Hammelman, twins Julie and Jan Rocke, Julie Aksamil, Kathy Fibiger, Jennifer Etzelmler, Belinda Geier, Melissa Gaylord.

Two sets of twins teamed up to treat one of the set's Blue Birds troops, the Dancing Flowers from Wedgewood Manor, to a Halloween party on Thursday. The festivities, including a spook house, were prepared by Denise and Debra Scheidt, for their eight-year-old sisters Kathy and Kristy Scheidt, all daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scheidt.

The children at Cedars Home had a Halloween frolic, also — but not at their residence.

The children from Cedars were the guests of East High School's DECA Club on Thursday evening. The members of the group picked up their young guests and drove them to East High where, in the cafeteria, all of the makings of a gala Halloween party were in evidence. Costumes, games and 'tricks and treats' were all ready for the youngsters and some of the DECA hosts and hostesses even donned costumes themselves to greet their excited guests.

Opening lead — two of spades.
Let's say you're in three notrump and West leads a spade. You win the queen with the king and find there are only seven sure winners — a spade, a heart, two diamonds and three clubs.

There are several ways of acquiring two more tricks. The jack of clubs may fall as you cash the A-K-Q, making the ten a trick; you may pick up a trick with a heart finesse; or you can gain two tricks if the diamonds are divided 3-2 and East has the queen.
No harm can come from first cashing the A-K of clubs, and, when you do, both defenders follow low. You should then shift your attention to diamonds by playing a low one to the ace and another one back to the king. With East showing out, your chances in that suit quickly disappear.

Now you play a low heart to the jack, and when the finesse wins you at last have established an eighth trick.

You could next lead a club to the Q-10, but you would be faced with a difficult problem if East followed low. You would not know whether to play the ten or the queen, since either play might prove to be eminently right or wrong.

A much better idea is to cash the ace of hearts first. This play has two advantages. One is that the king may fall on the ace. The other is that if it doesn't you will know considerably more about West's hand.

In the actual case, West plays the ten on the ace and this tells you that West — who obviously started with four spades, three hearts and two diamonds — had only two clubs originally.

Accordingly, you lead a club and finesse the ten, supremely confident that it will produce trick number nine.

"Christmas Enchantment" Is On Its Way

At 10 o'clock — central standard time — next Wednesday morning the doors will open on one of the Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary's exciting projects — its gift show. This year the show, the Auxiliary's 11th annual, has the enticing name of "Christmas Enchantment," and will be open to the public on both Wednesday and Thursday from 10 o'clock in the a.m. on into the evening hours. We're wondering if two days and long hours will be enough time to see all of the choice things "Christmas Enchantment" has to offer — inlaid tables from Italy, children's clothing, toys,

Christmas robes, candles — just to name a few items.

Kid brothers who snoop are bad enough. Kid brothers who take notes while they snoop — they could grow up to be blackmailers!

Yet, Joey doesn't think what he's doing is really wrong. He's just having a little fun at Sis's expense. And that notebook will come in handy the next time she threatens to "squeal" on him.

Part of growing-up is learning what is fair and what is unfair. Part of growing-up, too, is learning to forgive someone who has been unfair to us.

Never underestimate the immediate value of religious training in the Church. Obviously it provides a sound moral and spiritual foundation for later adult life. But, right now, it is molding the attitudes and decisions which will influence his life today.

Some things are hard to forgive

Reeves Is Concerned About Vietnam War

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Prompted by his "deep concern" over the human, economic and moral costs of the war in Vietnam, Central City farmer-rancher Ted Reeves Friday filed as a candidate for the Third District Democratic Congressional nomination.

"This war in Vietnam has touched me in places where I feel the moral quality of our nation has deteriorated very seriously," Reeves told newsmen.

"I'm a dove," he declared.

War, he suggested, is "a medieval practice . . . It's obsolete."

And, he told a press conference, "I'm in (the congressional race) because I have seven grandsons and I do not want them trained in the arts of war."

Reeves, 66, who is seeking nomination to the House seat now held by Republican Dave Martin, also stressed the need for an improved agricultural economy.

If elected, he said, he would work to "increase the dollar income of farmers who are engaged in the production of feed grains and wheat."

Wants More
In fiscal 1970, Reeves said, Congress allocated 4.8% of the federal budget to agriculture and natural resources. "We think this percentage should be increased," he noted.

In west and central Nebraska's 61-county Third District, Reeves acknowledged, "more people would probably be attracted to my economic philosophy than to my moral philosophy."

Reeves said federal funding should be "subtracted" from the defense budget to provide financing for domestic programs.

Currently chairman of the Nebraska Environmental Control Council, Reeves served in the Legislature from 1963 to 1965. As a senator, he recalled, he introduced legislation to abolish capital punishment in Nebraska and to label cigarettes as hazardous to health.

Reeves had earlier announced his interest in the congressional contest, then set off on a tour of the district.

"Real Pleased"
"We made the circle," he said. "We felt real pleased" at the expressed interest in his candidacy.

Reeves said he favors "immediate and complete military withdrawal from Vietnam" and abolition of the military draft system, with a national commitment to "new priorities."

But, he said, he wants to "assure" veterans that he would favor protecting all current veterans benefit programs.

Reeves proposed the establishment of food depots in strategic areas of the world "to supply basic food requirements where people are the victims of famine, pestilence and extreme emergencies created by natural causes."

As for inflation, he said, it is "largely related" to the war. "Let us try the route of saving human lives rather than the route of destruction," he said.

Tutor Service Begins Nov. 9

A free tutoring service for students having difficulty with their school work will begin Nov. 9.

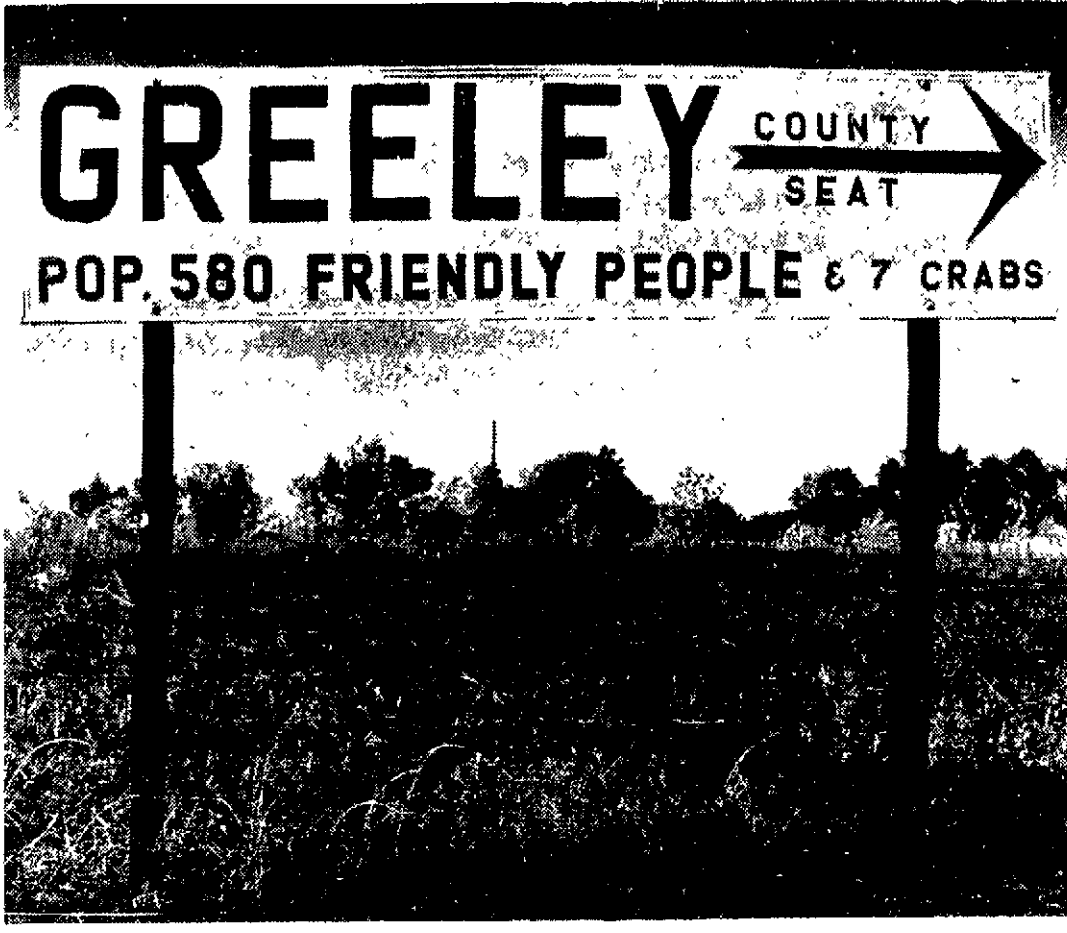

The tutoring sessions, co-sponsored by the University of Nebraska Volunteer Bureau and the Lincoln Recreation Department, will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Lincoln Recreation Center II, 2300 O.

Sessions may also be arranged on an individual basis with a tutor.

Fleming Company Declares Fourth Quarter Dividend

The Fleming Co. board of directors Friday declared a fourth quarter dividend of 12½ cents per share of common stock.

The Fleming Co. recently reported a 16.5% increase in earnings for the 12-week period ended Oct. 2. Net earnings for that period were reported as $1,113,472 compared with $955,518 for the same period last year.

A sign near the southeast corner of Greeley reveals not only the "friendly" population, but also the specific number of "crabs." The sign has attracted much attention from passersby at the Greeley County seat.

Vandalism Streak Reported One Of Worst In City's Recent History

Lincoln police were still receiving a rash of complaints late Friday night after one of the worst streaks of vandalism in Lincoln's recent history.

Police said windows of cars, homes and businesses in southeast and central Lincoln were shot out Thursday night and Friday morning by a pellet gun or high-powered slingshot. Rocks, a pop bottle and a balancing weight from an automobile tire also were thrown through windows.

By late Friday night, 49 separate complaints had been reported to police, involving over $3,500 damage. Damage to buildings and houses were estimated at about $2,500, and damage to about two dozen cars came to over $1,000.

The Ritz-Rue Health Studio, 2231 Winthrop Road, and the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association of America, 7700 A, each reported a loss of $300. Damage to Vanice Pontiac-Cadillac, 6996 O, was estimated at over $500.

A cracked glass window was placed at the O. M. Anderson Supply Co., 1075 No. 33rd, setting off a burglar alarm and causing about $200 damage. Family Drug, 48th and Van Dorn, reported $200 damage.

Dean L. Donoho of 311 Lyncrest Drive told police he was sitting in his living room late Thursday when he heard two BBs strike his picture window, causing about $175 damage. He said he was unable to identify any suspects.

A check of Journal-Star clippings kept on vandalism in Lincoln since 1967 indicates that the spree is the worst of its kind in Lincoln's recent history.

About $3,000 damage by pellet guns was done to about 40 cars in northeast Lincoln on May 12 and 13, 1967. On May 30, 1968, police received 39 complaints totaling $2,100 damage by youths shooting pellet guns in a widespread area of the city.

Police Lt. Paul Merritt said the vandalism is the worst he can recall in several years. Merritt said he expects the total damage to be much higher when all the reports are in. He said there were no suspects but every police officer on duty was taking part in the investigation.

Legislation Planned For Wild West Show Board

The State Game Commission was told Friday legislation is being planned which would set up a special board to operate the Wild West Show arena at North Platte.

But Director Willard Barbee, in disclosing the plans during a commission meeting, expressed doubts the show would ever reach the expectations originally envisioned. He was joined by the commission in his doubts.

The disclosure of the plans came after the commissioners discussed at length the problems surrounding the operation of the arena and ones related to the producer of this year's show, Montie Montana.

"We plan to draft some legislation that would create a board similar to the State Fair Board to run the show," Barbee said.

At present, he said, it isn't legally clear whether the Game Commission or the State Department of Economic Development is responsible for the North Platte facility.

The Legislature this year turned over the tourism program to the Economic Development Department by channeling tourism funds into that agency.

Statutes Not Repealed
"But they did not actually repeal the statutes which made us responsible for tourism," Barbee said.

The establishment of the board, he said, would take care of that as far as the show is concerned.

But meanwhile, he added, the show itself has undergone a substantial amount of bad publicity.

Montana was contracted by the state to produce the annual show. Included in the contract was permission to use the name "Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Congress of Rough Riders."

After the show was underway, the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus filed suit saying it had exclusive rights to the name under copyright laws.

Lawsuit, Bad Checks
Montana has blamed the lawsuit for the financial troubles the show encountered. It has since folded, and among others, according to Barbee, the state is sitting with an insufficient funds check written by Montana. The check amounts to $4,967.

"The damage (to the show) is that he has plastered the countryside with bad checks," the director said.

Montana has also contended the state should have come to his aid in the lawsuit and says the state actually owes him $15,000 in legal fees.

Barbee told the commission he plans to meet with the attorney general Monday to discuss the matter.

Commissioner Francis Hanna of Thedford said it appears to him, due to the circumstances, the show will never be as popular as had been expected.

"I think it will be extremely hard to scrape this up off the floor and make it fly again," Barbee said.

$252,832 Contract For Offutt Museum Awarded

The State Game and Parks Commission Friday approved the architectural drawings for the Aerospace Museum at Offutt Air Force Base and awarded a $252,832 contract to the Stitt Construction Co. of Omaha to build the museum.

The plans were drawn up by Omaha architect Willis Rieger and Friday's approval apparently ends a year-long dispute over the construction of the museum.

The 1971 Legislature appropriated $240,000 to build the structure.

Rieger's latest set of plans — and the plans approved Friday — call for construction of a hangar-like facility of about 20,000 square feet with a visitors' center set on the structure's mezzanine.

Originally, the commission approved construction of a more elaborate visitors' center with the other buildings to be constructed later, using the visitors' center as a core building.

However, a citizens' advisory committee appointed by former Gov. Norbert Tiemann recommended a different architectural approach, calling for the hangar-like building.

The commission earlier this year reversed itself and ordered Rieger to draw up new plans along the recommendations made by the advisory committee.

Rieger had earlier estimated construction might take four to six months.

The museum will be constructed at Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt and Gov. J. James Exon had put his stamp of approval on Rieger's latest drawings.

Ansley Woman Dies in Mishap

Ansley — A near head-on collision on a county road west of here has taken the life of an Ansley woman and injured a 15-year-old girl.

The victim was Lucille Rookstool, 38. The driver of the second car was Laura Strumpler of Berwyn, who was taken to a hospital at Callaway.

All Patients Out Of Orthopedic Hospital

All patients have been discharged or transferred from the Lincoln Orthopedic Hospital, according to State Institutions Director Michael LaMontia.

LaMontia said the last of the many handicapped children who received orthopedic care at the hospital left at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Most of staff that served those children are still out of a job, according to hospital superintendent David L. Moore.

"I would estimate about 70 out of the approximately 100 persons the hospital employed are still out of work," he said. "Jobs are hard to find."

The hospital building, however, will not stand idle. LaMontia said four governmental agencies are planning to move into the vacated hospital.

Among those agencies are the Crippled Childrens Service of the State Department of Welfare, the division of visual impairment, the division of mental retardation and the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation, which will use its space for other than office use.

Operation of the "brace shop" in the basement of the hospital will be continued by the University of Nebraska Medical School in Omaha, LaMontia said. The "brace shop" manufactures orthopedic appliances.

Personal Plates Cutoff Monday

Nebraskans wanting personalized license plates were reminded by State Motor Vehicles Director John W. Kissack Friday that Monday is the deadline for applications for 1972 plates.

Through Tuesday of this week, Kissack's office had processed requests for 213 sets of personalized plates. The cost is $50 per set.

Clinton Citizen Committee Disputes Library Closing

A committee chosen by a group of Clinton residents to represent their concern over the closing of the Northeast Library will probably present a "position paper" at the next meeting of the Library Board, Nov. 10, according to Wendell Gauger, chairman of the committee.

"I met with Dale Young, chairman of the Library Board and he said we are welcome to attend the meeting and present a paper," said Gauger, a botany professor at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

Gauger said the Clinton committee met this week and probably will present a position paper to the Library Board outlining their arguments for keeping the library open.

Little Ak-Sar-Ben Winners Named In Livestock Event

John Maahs of Waverly was named grand champion showman in the annual Little Ak-Sar-Ben livestock showmanship contest sponsored by the University of Nebraska Block and Bridle Club.

The event was a part of the second annual alumni weekend of activities conducted by the NU animal science department.

Reserve grand champion showman was Bill Gergen of Geneva. Contestants, all NU students competed in dairy, swine, sheep and beef divisions. Maahs was named champion in swine showmanship en route to his over-all title; Gergen was selected champion sheep showman prior to becoming second place showman over all divisions.

Ron Morgan of Burwell and Greg Phifer of Mason City were named champion and reserve champion showmen, respectively, in the beef division. Lorraine Anderson of Scribner and Fritz Steinhoff of Syracuse were champion and reserve champion, respectively, in the dairy division.

Ak-Sar-Ben presented trophies to the grand champion and reserve grand champion showmen, plaques were awarded to division winners and ribbons to all competing showmen.

Awards were presented to winners by the current Block and Bridle Club queen, Sue Vierregger of Springfield.

FBI Is Distributing Posters Warning Of Child Molesters

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation Friday began distribution of posters for coloring to warn children of the dangers of child molesters.

Fletcher D. Thompson, special agent in charge of the Omaha FBI office, said the coloring posters will be distributed to elementary school children in the Omaha-Council Bluffs area through the cooperation of public and parochial school officials.

Omaha and Council Bluffs police also are cooperating, he said.

At a meeting with school and law enforcement officials Friday, Thompson urged them to caution young children about the dangers of molestation particularly during the Halloween trick-or-treat rounds. Food, candy and other edibles should be checked, he added.

The posters warn children to "TURN DOWN GIFTS FROM STRANGERS, REFUSE RIDES OFFERED BY STRANGERS, AVOID DARK AND LONELY STREETS AND KNOW YOUR LOCAL POLICEMAN."

Thompson said the poster distribution began in 1956 and more than 50 million copies have been distributed by the FBI.

Hunting Mishap Kills G.I. Man Near Loup City

Loup City (AP) — Ted Ledgerwood, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Ledgerwood of Grand Island, was killed in a hunting accident near Loup City Friday.

Sherman County Sheriff Virgil Kaminski said Ledgerwood and Arnold Placke, 23, also of Grand Island, were hunting on the Earl Clausen farm when the accident occurred. Kaminski said Ledgerwood apparently rose up suddenly as Placke was about to fire and was struck by the charge.

Colorado May Be Billy Conn In Huskers' Schedule

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

It was prior to the Nebraska-Oklahoma State game last week and Nebraska sports information director Don Bryant was trying to draw a comparison of the plight of the Husker football team this season despite its at that time 6-0 mark.

"We keep playing people and beating them soundly," Bryant told an Oklahoma City writer. "And everybody keeps saying, 'Aw, you just added another bum to your Bum of The Month Club.'"

"But one of these days somebody's going to slip a Billy Conn in on us."

Bryant's reference was to former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, the original victim of the Bum of The Month charge until he met Billy Conn. Conn had piled up a big point edge over the heavyweight king when Louis saved his title with a 13th round knockout.

The Huskers last week made Oklahoma State No. 7 in its Bum of The Month club, but Colorado Saturday afternoon could be the Billy Conn to which Bryant was referring.

Colorado has proven it's no bum with victories over Ohio State and LSU, both of whom are still very much in the running for their respective league championships, the Big Ten and the Southeastern Conference.

And a fact that everyone has been overlooking in their looking ahead to that Thanksgiving Day date in Norman, Okla., between Nebraska and Colorado is the fact that Colorado is still very much in the running for a share of the Big Eight title.

All it would take for the Buffs to gain a share of that title, barring a major upset down the trail, would be for CU to defeat Nebraska Saturday afternoon, then have Nebraska topple the Sooners.

A Colorado victory over Nebraska would put them in a strong position to be no worse than second in the league chase.

Those, who are inclined to think lightly of the Buffs because of their 45-17 loss to Oklahoma, might be advised to check what Colorado did to Air Force a year ago after several games in which they were as disappointing as in the OU loss.

All the Buffs did to the Air Force, who were headed for the Sugar Bowl with their ranking in the top ten, was to beat them 49-19.

Longest Winning Streak

In addition to its 26-game undefeated string, Nebraska owns a 17-game winning streak, longest in Bob Devaney's coaching career at NU.

The longest previous winning streak was 16, from the fifth game of 1963 to the last game of 1964. And the Huskers have scored in 29 straight games.

The last team to blank the Huskers was Oklahoma, 47-0, in the final game of the 1968 season at Norman, Okla.

Several Huskers Nearing Records

A number of Huskers could log their name in the Nebraska record book in Saturday afternoon's contest with Colorado.

The record book picture:

Career Touchdowns — Jeff Kinney (27) needs one to tie NU record; Johnny Rodgers (18) needs 10.

Career Rushing Offense — Jeff Kinney (1,843) needs 353 to tie NU record.

Career Total Offense — Jerry Tagge (4,586) continues to build his own NU mark.

Season Total Offense — Tagge (1,353) needs 336 to tie own NU mark.

Career Pass Attempts — Tagge (518) adds to own NU mark.

Season Pass Completions — Tagge (86) needs 31 to tie Bob Churchich's mark.

Career Pass Completions — Tagge (309) adds to own NU mark.

Season Pass Yards — Tagge (1,180) needs 356 to tie own mark.

Career TD passes — Tagge (4.071) adds to own mark.

Season TD passes — Tagge (10) needs 2 to tie NU record.

Career TD passes — Tagge (25) adds to own record.

Career Pass Receptions — Rodgers (67) needs 13 to tie NU mark.

Season Pass Reception Yards — Rodgers (513) needs 197 to tie own mark.

Career Pass Reception Yards — Rodgers (1,223) needs 11 to tie NU mark.

Season TD catches — Rodgers (8) needs one to tie NU mark.

Career TD catches — Rodgers (15) needs 3 to tie NU mark.

Match Up The Coaches

Colorado sports information director Fred Casotti, taking a pessimistic outlook on the game, offers his thoughts poetically:

If it weren't for the fact,
That the game is such a financial banana,
I'd hijack our charter,
And take us to Havana.

OR

I've got an even better idea,
As the Nebraska game approaches,
Let's throw out the players,
And match up the coaches.

Casotti puts these coaching lineups together:

Ends — CU, Kay Dalton and Jim Mora; NU, Bob Devaney and Tom Osborne.

Tackles — CU, Ed Fusiek and Jim Phillips; NU, Monte Kiffin and Carl Selmer.

Guards — CU, Steve Sidwell and Augie Tammariello; NU — Mike Corgan and John Melton.

Center — CU, Steve Ortmayer; NU, Jim Ross.

Quarterback — CU, Eddie Crowder; NU, Jim Walden.

Halfbacks — CU, C. B. McGowan and Rick Duval; NU, Warren Powers and Cletus Fischer.

Fullback — CU, Jerry Claiborne; NU, Thunder Thornton.

Casotti adds, "Overall, CU rates a slight edge on the strength of about a 10-year-per-man age advantage. But NU has more experience — Devaney, Ross and Corgan are grandfathers."

Red Coats In Colorado Section

Conspicuous by their red coats in the Colorado section at Memorial Stadium Saturday will be members of the "World's Highest Go Big Red Fan Club" from Leadville, Colo.

They'll also be identifiable by their giant-sized tie clasps in the form of the State of Nebraska with the lettering Go Big Red being worn by the men and you can identify the ladies belonging to the group by their gold lapel pins in the shape of a star with a piece of Ralphie's person inserted in the star.

Having disposed of seven straight opponents, none of whom has graced the Top Twenty teams this season, Nebraska's defending national champions face their toughest test thus far Saturday when they tangle with the once-beaten and ninth-ranked Colorado Buffaloes.

The game at Lincoln, Neb., will be televised nationally ABC-TV, 1:30 p.m. EDT and sends the Cornhuskers against a rival Big Eight team that already has beaten such powers as Louisiana State and Ohio State on the road and lost only to second-ranked Oklahoma.

Trevino Surges Into Lead At Cold Sahara Tourney

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Lee Trevino, wearing a golf glove on each hand to protect against biting cold and blustery winds, matched par-72 Friday and surged into the second-round lead in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"Ain't I colorful?" quipped Trevino, holding up his hands, covered with one orange glove and one black.

Trevino, in a slump since his sweep of the American, Canadian and British open crowns three months ago, had a 36-hole

Nastase Blasts His Way Into Finals At Embassy

Wembley, England (AP) — Ilie Nastase of Romania blasted his way into the finals of the $50,000 Embassy tennis championships Friday night with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over America's Tom Gorman.

Nastase now meets Rod Laver of Australia in the finals. Laver had a walkover when South Africa's Bob Hewitt had to bow out of the semifinals with an injured ankle.

Nastase outclassed Gorman, from Seattle, Wash., with almost errorless ground shots and an effective service.

In the first set, Nastase burst through Gorman's service twice for a 4-0 lead and it looked like a complete rout.

Although Gorman fought back hard in the second set he could not contain the flamboyant Romanian, who zipped around the court and never looked like he was losing the initiative.

The Buffs' ground-oriented attack features Charlie Davis, 6'4 yards, 6.1 average and John Tarver 391.4 ft plus dangerous and speedy receivers such as Cliff Branch, Willie Nichols and Marv Whitaker.

Herb Overis, who should be fully recovered from a sprained ankle, and Bud Magrum lead the defensive charge but the Buffs, who have been singled for 21 points by LSU and Kansas State and 45 by Oklahoma, will have their hands full with the Cornhuskers.

The balanced Nebraska attack — 1,882 yards rushing, 1,313 passing-starts with quarterback Jerry Tagge, ably abetted by the running of Jeff sub-bars rounds of the day, a 70-h. Harris took a 71 and Yancey had a 72. January, a 42-year-old former PGA champion, also had a 72.

"For two days, the weather has been about as severe as I've ever played," said 42-year-old Arnold Palmer, who took his second consecutive 74 and was seven strokes off the pace at 148.

"It was just awfully cold and awfully windy," said the 31-year-old Trevino, who got away early in the morning.

Both he and Palmer, the two top gate attractions, finished their rounds shortly after noon

Government Highway Funds Cut $281,000 For Nebraska

Without any explanation, the Federal Highway Administration has reduced Nebraska's share of federal highway funds by $281,000 for fiscal 1973, according to State Engineer Thomas Doyle.

The appointment for fiscal 1973 is $39.2 million.

Doyle said no reduction is presently indicated for fiscal 1973 due to a lack of adequate state legislation governing advertising along highways.

However, Doyle said the notice stated the federal government could cut 10% of the state apportionment for failure to comply.

More Could Be Lost

This means if the Department of Transportation feels Nebraska does not measure up to the 1965 Highway Beautification Act, the state could lose $3.92 million.

Doyle said he expected the federal government to give the state a deadline extension so the Legislature can pass the necessary laws.

Currently, a Legislative interim study committee is drafting legislation which hopefully will bring Nebraska into compliance with the statute.

Premature?

Doyle expressed hope that Transportation Secretary John Volpe will not "prematurely" withhold federal funds.

The largest item in the fiscal 1973 apportionment is $19.6 million in funds for interstate highway systems. This is exactly the same as the current fiscal year's allotment.

The only funds which were increased were those for urban highway systems. Primary, secondary and rural highway systems funds were all axed.

Federal District Judge Warren Urbom Friday continued in effect a temporary restraining order issued earlier to halt a second election for members of the Winnebago Indian Tribal Council in northeast Nebraska.

The temporary order will remain in effect until Nov. 5 at which time Urbom will hear a request for a permanent restraining order.

At an election Oct. 5 to elect four members to the nine-member council, three of the four winners were members of a younger group which sometimes calls itself the "Progressive Thinkers."

On Oct. 15 the incumbent council called a meeting and voted 6-2 to declare the election void. The council ordered new elections.

The young Indians then obtained the temporary restraining order in Lincoln.

Food Tax Opponent's Goal Is 50,000 Signers

By BOB GUENTHER
 Star Staff Writer

Mike Jackson of Omaha, the newly appointed state chairman for the petition drive to eliminate the sales tax on food, said Friday his goal is to get some 50,000 signatures of registered voters.

This would be approximately 18,000 more signatures than the 32,207 required by law.

"We are building an organization across the state and should have petitions in every part of the state by the end of next week," Jackson said.

Calling the sales tax on food "a regressive form of taxation," Jackson listed some reasons why the tax hits those who can least afford it the hardest.

1. "The money due back from taxes paid under the credit system is not fully returned to the taxpayer." Jackson supplied figures showing that a Lincoln family spending $150 per month on food at the year's end pays $26 in taxes which are not returned despite tax credit allowed.

2. "There is a disparity in taxes paid from one section of the state to another." For example, Kearney's sales tax rate is 2.5%; Lincoln's is 3%; and Omaha's is 3.5%, he said.

3. "The tax credit gimmick is not working for the 141,000 Nebraska taxpayers who did not receive a tax credit due to them last year," he said.

"Who are these taxpayers? The greatest majority are the poor and our senior citizens," Jackson said.

Corn-Cut Gain

New York (U) — A late spurt carried the stock market Friday to its first clear-cut gain in more than two weeks.

The major averages closed with small gains and advances topped declines among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

The averages had edged ahead on Thursday for the first time in 12 sessions, but gainers trailed losers on the Big Board.

Wall Street analysts said there were no developments to account for the mild turnaround and expressed the opinion that the day's performance was merely a technical move.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed with a gain of 1.35 at 839.00 after having been in the minus column until the late half-hour. It had edged up 1.24 Thursday after having lost a total of 15.99 points in the three previous sessions.

Hog Prices

Are Mixed At Omaha

Omaha, Neb. (U) — Butcher hogs were mixed here Friday in fairly active trading on a liberal supply of some 8,000 head.

Butchers under 220 lb. meeting rigid shipping specifications were steady to instances 25 higher, but the bulk of the run was steady to 25 instances 50 lower.

Most 190-240 lb. butchers 18.50-19.25, short load 19.50 weights 240-270 lb. 17.50-18.75. Others down to 16.75.

Sows were steady to 25 lower at 16.00-16.75.

Fed cattle offerings were limited and a few loads sold steady. Two loads of choice steers drew 32.00-32.25. A load of choice 900 lb. heifers.

Slaughter lambs were nominal.

Economist Calls For Freeze On Federal Deficit Spending

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Omaha — U.S. Chamber of Commerce chief economist Dr. Carl Madden, addressing the "Aircade '71" conference here Friday afternoon, said inflation on deficit spending during periods of full employment, and called for a federal "freeze on spending."

A second economist, Dr. David L. Grove of IBM, said the president's wage-price freeze will have made "quite a contribution to the atmosphere" if it succeeds in changing expectations of increases in cost of living — expectations which he said serve as inducements for labor wage demands.

The third member of the panel of speakers, Charles Smith Jr. of SIFCO Industries, said it is time the public becomes aware of "the extortion going on at the point of a gun. The gun is called a strike."

The conference, jointly sponsored by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry (NACI), represented one stop on a 15-day, 15-city cross-country tour by officers of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and top-flight speakers from various fields relevant to business.

Dr. Madden explained business' enthusiastic welcome of the freeze, unusual in light of the business sector's traditional distrust of government regulation, as resulting from a deteriorating U.S. balance of deficits problem and recent wage settlement in excess of increases in productivity.

He suggested the freeze be given a chance, although it "only treats the symptoms and not the cause" of inflation — which he claimed to be deficit spending when the economy is at full employment. He cautioned that the administration "may contribute to renewed inflation with a renewal of deficit spending and too much monetary growth."

Dr. Grove, vice-president and chief economist for International Business Machines, said the President's economic program is intended to realign world exchange rates, to dramatize (with the surtax) the relative disadvantage of the dollar, and gain "a more equitable sharing of our defense burdens overseas."

The dollar, he said, had become completely overpriced, and the 10% import surcharge was intended to be used as a bargaining device to gain a more equitable position for the dollar in world trade. But, he said, "we are going to have to see that productivity increases at least as fast as the rest of the world" or the dollar will become overpriced again.

Smith, chairman of the board of SIFCO Industries, Cleveland, Ohio, criticized not only organized labor for what he termed "extortion," but the federal government for its role in "not only approving but financing" wildcat strikes by giving strikers food stamps and other welfare aid.

Commenting on the power of organized labor, Smith said, "When the large corporations try to stand up to this juggernaut of power and are unable to, what are our companies going to do?"

The afternoon panel discussion, concerning national economy, followed a morning discussion of welfare and health care, and another concerning agribusiness in which the audience questioned John Kenneth Galbraith in Washington by telephone.

Owen NACI President

Omaha — Jim Owen, Fremont, was elected president of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry (NACI) at the organization's 59th annual meeting here Friday.

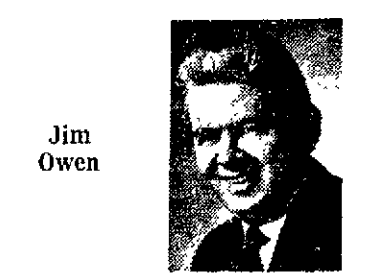

The meeting was held at the Omaha Hilton in conjunction with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Aircade program.

Owen, manager of Jayhawk Boxes Inc. at Fremont, succeeds Omaha Attorney Marvin G. Schmid, senior partner of Schmid, Ford, Mooney, Frederick & Caporale.

New NACI district vice presidents elected at the meeting were Harry P. Seward of Lincoln, president of Bankers Life Nebraska; Robert Gangel of Columbus, vice president of the First National Bank and Trust Co.; Lafe F. Anderson of Hastings, vice president and treasurer of the Morrison-Quirk Grain Corp. and Leonard Henderson of Scottsbluff, district agricultural manager of the Great Western Sugar Co.

Re-elected vice presidents were Robert G. Lueder of Omaha, president of Lueder Construction Co., and Carl Speltz of Kearney, president of Speltz Lumber Co. of Kearney. E. Stanton Miller II, executive vice president of the Omaha National Bank, was re-elected treasurer.

Nineteen Nebraska businessmen were elected or re-elected to the NACI board in

Gas Tax Collections Dip In State

Gas tax collections last month in Nebraska dropped last month compared to the previous month, the State Roads Department reported Friday.

Receipts from the tax on gasoline and special fuels brought in $6,978,000 last month compared to a new one-month record set in August of $7,464,000.

For the current year to date, the tax has brought in 5.8% more money than in the same period last year, the report said. The money is the source of much of the state's road building program.

Traffic rose 7% on Nebraska streets and roads last month compared with the same month a year ago, the report said, but dropped about 12% from August of this year.

For the year to date, traffic is up about 4% throughout the state.

Marland's Name To Be Submitted For Illinois Job

State Railway Commissioner Robert Marland of Lincoln said Friday his name will be submitted as a candidate for the job of secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Marland said he was asked for permission to submit his name by the vice president of a "large Midwestern railroad." He did not identify the person.

Marland, who represents the 4th District on the commission, said his name would be submitted to Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie on Monday.

NPPD Decision On Relocation May Be Made

A spokesman for the Nebraska Public Power District said Friday a decision on whether to relocate the District's headquarters might be made next month.

The headquarters are located in Columbus and the District's board of directors is scheduled to meet there Nov. 30.

Charles Sayre, NPPD's public relations director, said the board met Friday in Kearney to review the initial results of a report on the feasibility of moving the headquarters.

He said a decision at the November meeting is "probable" but not certain.

The district announced in July was considering construction of a new "electric center" to relieve a severe space shortage at its present headquarters.

The district said it was considering building the center in one of several cities, including Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney and Lincoln.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you right.
